SPRING WORK.

Notwithstanding the cold and backward spring the general impression thus far appears to be that the season promises well for be great leading specialty of New England,

Many farmers fail to make the best use of see his origin placed beyond question. what they have about the place. With a little care the hens, the pigs and the smaller animals about the place can be made to do plies of manure. Mr. Lewis, in his lecture before the State Board of Agriculture at Barre, to which we have often referred, said : promise of a fine growing spring is now "I never used hen manure on the corn crop good. without having benefited it more than the with muck, about one part hen manure put them in now. when composted with hen manure, it is a new idea and we wonder where so intelligent a man as Mr. Lewis got hold of it. Muck is a somewhat powerful absorbent of gases and so far from driving them off is more inclined to hug them tight and to preserve them. If the compost were made in the open air and exposed to the washing of tains we should expect a very considerable oss by drainage, but no sane farmer would build his compost in such an exposure if he could be done equally well.

The main point is to save and economise this valuable material under the hen roost, and apply it judiciously, and this requires turb them. The birds do the farmer untold that it be divided by some substance like muck or loam that will hold and retain the good. gases generated by the process of fermentaion. The moisture in the muck would not have a ten lency to make it give up its ammonia any more readily, though it would hasten the process of heating and the generation of gases. It is important for every farmer to keep a supply of dry muck through the winter to use in this way, that is, to apply from time to time under the hen roosts, the privy, the stables and elsewhere. BIRDS NESTS.

We hope every farmer's boy will take care not to molest the bird's nests this spring. Many years ago, " in the days when we were young," it was very common for the hoys to wage a relentless war against the nests and eggs of certain birds, like the catbird, the blackbird, the crow, and many to have them on hand they will order them. others. The injury inflicted upon the comhad any old shed or even a henery where it munity by their destruction was beyond calculation, but the habits and the benefits of birds were not then understood as they are now. 2nd. Phosphate of Lime.
Nitrogen is useful in three forms:
1st. As Nitric Acid.
2nd. As Ammonia.
3rd. As organic decomposable matter, ldting Ammonia or Nitric Acid.

Nitrogen is more valuable in the form of Nitrie Acid than it is as Ammonia, and Ammonia Nitrogen is more valuable in the form of Nitric Acid than it is as Ammonia, and Ammonia is more valuable than decaying substances yielding it. The best possible manure for all gramincous crops, Wheat, Barley, Maize, Oate, Sugar Cane, Rice, Pasture, Grass, is a mixture of Super Phosphate of Lime and Nitrate of Soda. 300 lbs. of Super-Phosphate of Lime and 275 lbs. of Nitrate of Soda applied every vear to one acre of ordinary English land, has for twenty consecutive years given a produce annually of 6 quarters of Barley: 14 tons of farm-yard dung applied annually over the same period has given the same produce of Barley. Super-Phosphate of Lime is a special chemical manufacture which can be made cheaper on a large than on a small scale, and therefore farmers ought to purchase it cheaper than they can make it, but it is better to make up their own compound manures, purchasing their Nitrate of Soda or Salts of Ammonia. It is not advisable to sow artificial manure with Beans, Peas, Tares or other leguminous plants. Corn and root crops will take all the artificial manure which the farmer can afford to pay for. Super-Phosphate of Lime should always be placed under the soil, either by drilling or harrowing in when the send is sown. Nitrate of Soda may be sown in the same way, or it may be sown broadcast when the crop is up. The increase in the growth of the cereal crop is much more dependent upon the Nitrogen supplied than on the Phosphoric

For small fruits generally " The Small Fruit Culturist," by Andrew S. Fuller, is about the best little treatise to be had. It treats of the strawberry, the raspberry, the blackberry, the currant, the cherry, the cranerry &c., is well illustrated and sufficiently idensed, a work of 276 pages, and very soful Pardee's little manual for the culti vation of the Strawberry is also a useful little work. There are numerous works on Grape culure, some of them very elaborate. Among the most recent is " Strong on the Grape," a very useful manual on that subject, while the most readable of all is perhaps, " My Vineyard at Lakeview." The most elaborate is the work of " Haraszthy on Grape Culture and Wine Making in California." All these works can be had of the bookellers generally, or if they do not happen which can be cured by a timely resort to this standard preparation, as has been proved by the hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors. It is acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most reliable preparation ever introduced for the relief and cure of all Lung complaints, and is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years. When resorted to in season it seldom fails to effect a speedy cure in the most severe cases of Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Influenza, Asthma, Colds, Sore Throat; Pains or Soreness in the Chest and Side, Liver Complaint, Bleeding at the Lungs, &c. Wistar's Balsam does not dry up a benind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs, and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.
